“ To my brother Bryan (Bo) Suggs: Still miss you so much almost 4 years after your death. If you had lived, I believe we would have spent a lot of time together. We understood each others' depression and loneliness. Wish we had had the chance.

Love you, Bo.

“ It is now almost June and I still miss my brother intensely. Bo, I think you would be pleased to know how much impact you had on my life in recent years as our relationship grew. How much I wish you were still here!

“ Eighteen days after Bo's passing, the hole in my heart continues to grow and ache. I miss him and our daily phone conversations more than I would have thought possible. I guess I took for granted having someone with whom I had shared a childhood that I could talk to about anything without fear of judgement. Now I know how valuable that is. I'm not saying that we always got along as kids (Ha)! But as adults, we could appreciate & care for each other Thanks for your supportive friendship Dear Bo. I miss you so much.

“ Yesterday I lost my only brother Bo (Bryan) following his brief illness. I can't believe the hole it's left in my heart. Bo always told everyone that his wife Linda was "the love of his life." I have to believe that they are finally reunited.

I love you and will miss you so much,

*Love,
Nancy*

“ My brother, Bo (Bryan) had become my true friend in recent years. We talked about drugs, sex, rock & roll and everything in between. We had weekly talks about our favorite television shows and laughed a lot. I looked forward to monthly lunches we had with other family members. He loved his wife, Linda till his dying day even though he lost her several years ago to illness. The last time I saw him, when he was failing, I played Pink Floyd's "Comfortably Numb" for him and, even though he wasn't completely awake, he started keeping time with his hands. It was his favorite song. I can't believe I will never see or talk to him again.

I love you, Bo.

“ Although I never saw Uncle Bryan very often. He was always the most talkative guy in the room. Would engage in conversation with anybody and always was very friendly and approachable. I can't imagine having lost both my parents Jennifer. I know right now you must be lost. My thoughts and prayers are with you.
