“ The kitchen table that we solved all the World's problems at, and the odd little staircase by the back door. It may be weird to some, but those sights were so comforting to me. There were a place of safety, a place of love, a place of acceptance and a place where I could go to just talk and have someone who cares about me listen. Watching fireworks on the roof and being careful of where we walked. A jug of Homemade Cherry wine. A basement that doubled as a dining room for family and friends by the dozens. The same front porch and shrubs that marked the entrance to a place where so many go for love and support a bit of time and a bit of food. Strong and confident, hard working and compassionate. A true family man, who's family I am proud to be a part of.
