“ Mommy tomorrow is your birthday and I'm going to try to go to the graveyard. My life will never be the same without you, I need to talk to you so much has happened in the last 10 years it's unbelievable, if you were here most of the stuff wouldn't have happened. You were right about my kids it hurts so much I don't deserve this crap, yes I made mistakes but still I know you've seen everything I've went through, my heart just breaks I want to come to ferris street and see you open the door I'm so heartbroken. Happy birthday I love you to the moon and back

“ I miss you mommy, you were my rock. I felt apart when you got sick. My dad told me to always take care of you so that's what I did, even when it felt like I was losing my mind.I. miss when the kids were little in the summer we would take them to caeserland and the park and stay out all day. I miss going shopping and laughing our heads off over silly things. My life will never be the same without my beautiful mother.

Love always, your baby girl Darlene

“ Mom,
I will miss you so much...your laugh was so contagious. Every time I saw you, you were always smiling...in a good mood....never demanding...it's no wonder that the staff at Elmcroft loved you so much and you were known by just about everyone there. I was always fascinated at how very young-looking and beautiful your hands and nails still were and your thick, beautiful hair. I know at this very moment that you are once again holding hands with your beloved Enos who was taken from you way too soon and have missed these many, many years. You were a wonderful mother-in-law...never judgmental and and always kind to me..... I will remember these qualities about you always.

God Blesssing with the angels...Love and miss you, Brigitte “ Wish I could have have shared with you your ancestry through your Grandfather Oscar Bryant whose forefathers came from Holland in 1458 to New Amsterdam (New York). You and I have a lot of the features they had. Esp. his great Aunt. You were always interested when I dug up these things. But I bet you are meeting them all up in Heaven right now. I miss sharing these things with you!!!

“ My Dearest Mother.....It was one year ago when I last saw you. I would give anything to have seen you again before you left this earth but we lost our car having to forgo the payment in order to have the money to move after losing our house. I will never forget how you looked right into my eyes your gaze never wavering the last time I saw you... as if we would never see each other again...which we did not. I rest assured in the fact that we will see each other again in Gods glorious kingdom where you now reside. Sleep for now precious Mother and meet me when its my time to come home. I love you.....Kim
